Josy's Little Library NEWSLETTER

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT!

A new book is in the works... the beautiful French countryside, but new adventures for old and new characters, and a peek into life at a French middle school... That's all I can say for now. Want to see your name in it? Connect with me on Instagram @josyslittlelibrary to take part in a chance to name some new characters starting in March! -Amy

JOSY'S FEBRUARY READ: Black History Month

For Black History Month, we found an adorable French children's book to learn more about the French-American dancer, singer and actress Josephine Baker, whom we mentioned in our May 2022 newsletter. Beyond the fact that she was a famous entertainer in the 1920s, we also learned that she had a pet cheetah who went everywhere with her, lived at one time in a castle, adopted 12 children, and was a spy during World War II. What an inspirational woman and life! The Quelle Histoire book series is a large collection about many important historical figures, and has wonderful illustrations and learning activities at the end.

New on the Website: English-learning materials

Due to requests from our French-speaking readers, we've added some English-learning resources to the website. It includes a vocabulary list and exercises to accompany the book Emmy and the Iris, along with a French-American cultural lesson, coloring pages and a certificate of completion.. Don't hesitate to mention our book and resources to your Francophone friends!
